Curated Nest

While the homeowners loved the charm and original details of this Larchmont home, they sought a modern layout that would include an updated primary suite.

Says Erin Coren of Curated Nest Interiors: "We wanted to provide a more functional use of the space, rearranging the zones in the bedroom completely and expanding their bathroom. The master suite was a complete redesign in how we laid out the spaces. We channeled our inner puzzle abilities and modified the flow of the room by expanding the bathroom, adding a second closet, and making the previous walk-in closet into an office space with lovely natural light.

"Being an older home," she continues, "the bathroom consisted of a dark shower stall and a single vanity. By expanding and rotating the bathroom configuration, we were able to create a double vanity and a better flow in the bedroom and larger interior space in the bathroom."

Coren and fellow principal Lina Galvão chose natural tones in the bathroom with an emphasis on contrast by adding the black-iron shower door and the black mirrors.

The shower tile and floor tile, both from Tile Bar, and hardware and faucet from Kohler were thoughtfully selected. "The shower-wall tile was arranged vertically, to make the ceiling feel taller; shapes were the emphasis on the floor, with triangles of various sizes," says Coren. "The custom light fixture from Lucent Lightshop expands over both sinks, giving the custom walnut vanity, from Walnut, a unified focal point."
